Superintendent, trustee share thoughts on progress

'95-96 was good year for schools, officials say

■ New efforts succeed in slicing dropout rates and truancy in West Sacramento's school district

For the kids of this area, like most school-aged children everywhere, summer vacation can never get here quick enough. But there are a number of Washington Unified School District administrators and teachers who were actually saddened to see the 1995-1996 school year come to an end. "This has been a wonderful year for the district," Dr. David Miller, Superintendent of Schools, told the News-Ledger. "I can't remember the last time I've seen so many individuals -- from the School Board on down -- focused on working together for the good of students."

Nancy Candee, a member of the School Board, said "I was especially pleased this year with the workshop we had with the administration where we discussed the need for the district to provide long-term training for teachers and agreed to focus more of our energy on improving the reading skills of our students. We also talked about better ways to measure and evaluate what our students are learning."

When asked to comment on any other areas of improvement she has noticed over the past year, Mrs. Candee said, "The music programs at both the middle school and the high school have really impressed me. I also liked the way we were able to distribute sizable amounts of one time only money to help improve our libraries. And I think it's also important to mention that the School Board continues to foster an attitude where individuals can agree to disagree and still stay on good terms with each other."

Dr. Miller was asked if he had heard anything concrete yet on whether or not the State of California had come up with any of the promised funds to help Washington Unified and other school districts throughout the state lower their classes sizes. "To tell you the truth, I don't think the State is one hundred percent sure of what they're doing on this issue yet. We could certainly use any help we can get when it comes to lowering our class sizes, and I would support any effort made in that direction, but I think we're just going to have to wait for the State budget to be finalized."

When asked if he was pleased with the fact that River City High School received the very hard to come by California Distinguished Schools Award this year, Dr. Miller said, "That was definitely one of the high points of the 1995-1996 school year. It was truly a major accomplishment and a lot of hard work went into making it happen. River City's Principal, Donna White, and the Vice-Principal over there, Ken Whittemore, have done a tremendous job this year, but of course the real credit goes to the wonderful teachers and students we have at our high school."

When asked to comment on some of the other positive things going on in Washington Unified, Dr. Miller mentioned that the City of West Sacramento has agreed to provide new playground equipment for four of the District's schools; that the Board of Education is getting closer to making a decision on a proposal which would require developers to pay their fair share of funding for future schools in this area; that unexcused absences in the District were down 63% in the past two years; that the dropout rate was down 29%; that the District was moving ahead on plans to build a new elementary school in the Southport area which is scheduled to open by September of 1998; that $400,000 of an $800,000 first payment from a redevelopment fund which is expected to grow to $22 million was used to pay for much needed maintenance on District schools; that the Board of Education has tentatively identified a site for a new high school, and that it will decide within two months whether or not to ask the voters of this area to pass a 30-35 million dollar school bond to help pay for it.

"It was a very productive year," Dr. Miller concluded, "and I'm extremely pleased with the fact that everyone in the District seems to be truly dedicated to putting the needs of our children first."

Trustees re-evaluate fee scale from new home development

■ District hesitates to accept plan for development fees; city will be patient, says mayor

By Steve Marschke

School district trustees are having second thoughts about accepting a fee structure from developers hoping to build new homes in West Sacramento's southern half. Trustees pulled an agenda item concerning the three-way agreement between the city, school district and developers from their meeting last week.

The current agreement calls for $9,594 in school impact fees from each new 1,800 square foot home. The sliding-scale fees are meant to cover much of the costs the district will face in building new schools for the new developments.

"Apparently, the board has wondered if the fees are enough, or if we can get more fees from the development," said Greg Potnick, mayor of West Sacramento. "This is a very progressive agreement. You have to put a 'realism' test to any new fees. You can name any fee level you want, but if the homes don't get built because the fees are too high, it's not realistic."

School board representatives could not be immediately contacted for comment.

Potnick said he doesn't see the issue as a divisive one between the city and district. But an agreement is needed so that city plans to build a new bridge and other infrastructure can go forward, since these plans partly depend on new development in order to help pay the costs.

"Our intent clearly stated in the city general plan is to bring the school district along with us," said Potnick. "I'm not going to intercede in school district policy (by attempting to force this agreement)."

Potnick also added that the impact fees will never cover all of the costs of new school construction. But new property taxes and state school construction funds are expected to make up the difference.

River City's salutatorian makes moving speech

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

A couple of Friday nights ago, as I sat in the dark with my family at the Sacramento Community Center watching River City High School's 1996 graduation ceremonies, a tall, thin young man nervously stepped up to the brightly lit podium to deliver his Salutatorian speech. I recognized him immediately because he is one of my son Ty's friends, but I was soon to learn that I didn't really know Senh Saelee very well at all.

His opening remarks were appropriate for such an occasion, but after he had finished thanking his classmates and teachers for all their help and encouragement over the past four years, he suddenly turned his attention to the heart of his speech.

"I would like to take this opportunity to personally acknowledge the support that my parents have given me. Without them, without their direction, without their determination, I know for a fact I wouldn't be standing up here right now." Senh then took a deep breath and bravely continued. "Almost 18 years ago, in a small mountain village in northern Laos, I was born into a family burdened with many hardships. At the time, my father was suffering from a gunshot wound that had shattered his thigh bone, and having minimal medical attention, many doubted that he would ever be able to walk again. Because of my father's disability, my older brothers and I became heavily dependent upon our mother. For an entire year and a half, from daybreak to sunset, my mother single-handedly fulfilled her daily duties in the rice fields, which were perhaps four miles from home. She also managed to take care of my brothers and I very well. And on top of all that, my mother managed to prove all of the doubters wrong by nursing my father back to walking condition.

"Soon after my father regained his strength, the village leaders decided that it was time for the village to abandon the war torn country. Although far from full recovery, my father and my family had no choice but to go along with the plan. Soon after the decision was made, despite the fact that he could barely walk, my father strapped me onto his back to begin the sixteen day walk into Thailand. If you can only imagine, my father, crippled as he was, with a one year old child on his back, crawling underneath the brushes, forcing his way through thorns, climbing up and over mountains, and wading across rivers, you can probably sense how determined he was to find a better life for me and my brothers. Every night, every one of those sixteen nights, my father and I staggered into the campsites sometimes two or three hours behind all the others, the last ones to arrive. There we would find the gentle warmness of my mother, who patiently kept the food warm for us while the other members of our village silently slept."

As I listened to Senh Saelee's speech, which also spoke of his brothers Kao, Chan, Cheng, Sou and Lai, who are also in the process of making good lives for themselves in America, I found myself thinking back to those bleak days shortly after I had returned home from the war in Vietnam. I recalled how sure I was back then that absolutely nothing good could ever come out of that horrible chapter in American history; how almost 60,000 young boys had lost their lives for no good purpose; how more than a million Vietnamese had also perished; and how that in our nation's zeal to stop the spread of Communism in Southeast Asia, we had inadvertently de-stabilized wonderful countries like Laos and Cambodia.

"To this day," concluded Senh, "I wonder how we survived. I wonder how my mother managed to carry the load she had, and how my father felt as he walked, with me on his back, all the way into Thailand. These are the type of questions that constantly arise within myself and this is what motivates me. I owe everything to my parents because without their hard work, determination, and love, I wouldn't be here tonight."

In the days since his graduation, I have learned that Senh Saelee was not just his Class Salutatorian, but he also received the Soroptomist International of West Sacramento Youth Citizenship Award, The Alice Driver Memorial Art Award, and a Rotary Scholarship to help him pay for his college education at UC Davis.

"My parents were hard-working farmers in Laos," Senh told me a few days ago, "but in order to give me and my brothers a better life in America, they risked everything. When we finally did reach the refugee camps in Thailand, they wouldn't let us in. We had to wait for a month on top of a nearby hill, living off mushrooms. Then my father had to bribe the guards. Then when we did get into the camp, it burned down."

As I listened to Senh talk about his family's long and difficult journey to America, it began to dawn on me that the war in Vietnam actually did have an up-side, and that thanks to the courage and sacrifice of parents like Wenn Fong and Ket Poo Saelee, their sons will grow up in a country made richer because they are here. And it's also good to know that Camus was right when he wrote, "Even in the darkest winter, there is an invincible summer inside us all."

The Chicago Bulls won the NBA title on Father's Day with an 87-75 victory over Seattle in game six. The Bulls finished the season with the best regular season and postseason in league history, with a 4-2 series victory. Overall, the Bulls won 87 of 100 games, going 15-3 in the playoffs.

The Kings made a great trade with the Denver Nuggets, acquiring high-scoring guard Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf for Saruņas Marciulionis and the 37th pick of the June 26 NBA draft. Keep your eyes open for another big trade by the Kings!

Basketball is over, so bring on the football season!

The fight of the decade in Las Vegas between Oscar De La Hoya and Julio Cesar Chavez turned out to be a bad day for the champ. Chavez lost his Super lightweight crown to Oscar, when he suffered a large cut over his left eye. De La Hoya cut Chavez with his first two hard punches of the fight.

Oscar threw two hard left jabs that hit Chavez above his left eye and the bleeding never stopped! Chavez claimed after the fight that he had been cut early in training camp and the cut hadn't healed properly.

Either way, the younger De La Hoya was going to stop Chavez as he showed in the fourth round, when he fired up Chavez in the middle of the ring, opening up the cut and breaking Chavez' nose with a wicked right hand. The doctor stopped the contest in the fourth round with 23 seconds left in the round. Chavez said he couldn't see after the cut, and that he would have won the bout. He demands a rematch!

Remember a few weeks ago when I predicted a De La Hoya TKO and an even bigger rematch. . .

Stay tuned for the De La Hoya vs. Chavez II fight next year!

The closed circuit bout sold 8,500 seats at the Arco, but in the Los Angeles area, the contest sold out the Sports Arena (23,000)), Anaheim Pond (18,000), Inglewood Forum (15,000) and had 20,000 fans outdoors at the Rose Bowl. The final statistics are not in yet, but the preliminary reports have over 400,000 tickets sold in Southern California. I would be willing to bet that 90 percent of the tickets sold were to Chavez's loyal fans. Each fighter was guaranteed $9 million!

Willie Jorrin (13-0, 8 KOs) fights again at the Radisson Hotel on Monday, July 1. Jorrin, who has been awarded a U.S. ranking since his last fight, will enter the ring to face Juan Luis Torres (22-5, 15 KOs) of Tijuana, Mexico, in a 10-round main event. The promoters have signed two female boxers in a four-round bout.

Good news and bad news for Sacramento welterweight boxer Ray Lovato (21-1, 11 KOs). The good news is Ray will get $25,000 and a championship fight on the undercard of the Mike Tyson fight July 13. The bad news is he will be fighting the undefeated champion in Felix Trinidad (29-0, 25 KOs). The Sacramento Scorpions (9-5) are playing the UNAM Pumas from the professional first division in Mexico, on Wednesday, June 19, at 7:30 p.m. at Sacramento State College -- Hornet Field. The Scorpions are charging $10 for adults, $5 for children under 12 and children under 5 are free. The Scorpions' next home game is Friday night against the Ohio Xoggz at 7:30 p.m. at Woodcreek High School in Roseville.

See ya next week!!

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Too many rooms at the Inn

Earlier this month, and again this week, there has been discussion on this page about the problems faced by the motel and hotel operators of West Sacramento, who primarily do business on West Capitol Ave.

Any discussion of a long-term solution to these problems has to include the acknowledgement that we simply have too many of these motel and hotel rooms. Marketing strategies and physical improvements to these motels and hotels can help fill the rooms with paying customers, but can never bring our motel row back to the glory days of several decades ago -- when West Capitol was part of the prime thoroughfare connecting the Bay Area with Sacramento, Lake Tahoe, and the rest of the nation to the east, and before somebody came along and built a freeway to take over that purpose.

Gone are the days when the Hotel El Rancho (near Merkley and West Capitol) was a thriving motel and not a Buddhist monastary; when Liberace played at the Hotel El Rancho's piano and Clark Gable dropped in to spend the night. Gone, too, are the other glamour hotels. There is no reason to believe they will ever make a comeback -- even if there turns out to be room for a single new "grand" hotel in West Sacramento to help serve the capital city area.

So while one hopes that the city and the motel and hotel owners can come up with some plans to better market local hotel rooms, and bring tourists to the local economy, we also have to realize that this will not be a complete solution to the problems these motels and hotels face.

Some of them will continue to have trouble maintaining themselves, and a few will continue to turn a blind eye to the prostitution and drug activity they allow among their renters. This is the case now, as well -- although it should be stressed that the police believe that the vast majority of local motel and hotel operators try hard to run "clean" establishments.

In the long run, we've got to look at other kinds of businesses along the strip. Achieving this conversion is a different problem, but agreeing that this change is necessary is a point that should be beyond debate.

Guest opinion:

Motel marketing plan should move beyond billboards

The News-Ledger recently published an open letter to West Sacramento City Manager Joe Goeden, written by the West Sacramento Motel/Hotel Association.

Following is Mr. Goeden's response to the association:

By Joseph Goeden
City Manager
City of West Sacramento

I would like to offer my comments in response to your "open letter" to me, published in the June 5 edition of the News-Ledger.

First of all, I have made myself available for discussions to you and your group on several occasions, and will continue to do so. It was unfortunate that illness prevented me from attending your association's May 21 meeting -- I was looking forward to attending. I would welcome another opportunity.

Secondly, most of the issues you raised are not new and have been discussed at length at meetings that have included members of your association, members of the hotel/motel industry that are not members of your association, Chamber of Commerce representatives, and City representatives. Many of the issues raised in your letter are not in dispute.

All of us agree that the City will benefit from gateway signs; better gateway maintenance; quality development of West Capitol Avenue; business assistance where appropriate; a reasonable sign ordinance, and countering negative publicity. What we have yet to agree on is what, if any, marketing assistance would be appropriate for the City to provide to the businesses that generate Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT).

In your letters, you imply that the City has neglected West Capitol Avenue. Quite the contrary is true. The City has put a considerable amount of time and money into improving its physical appearance, including: resurfacing the roadway; replacing and installing sidewalks; landscaping the median strips; removal of several blighted structures, including three adult book stores and several dilapidated business. We have helped improve the quality of motels in operation by the removal of several that were the sites of considerable criminal activity. We have also focused the efforts of our Police Department to combat the insidious problems of prostitution and drug activity that exist along West Capitol Avenue. Our Prostitution Abatement Program works primarily on West Capitol Avenue, and one of our beat patrols is dedicated to providing it intense coverage. The above expenditures are disproportionate to monies spent in any one of our neighborhoods, and demonstrates a strong and unquestionable commitment to improve the business environment on West Capitol Avenue.

The City is acutely aware of the importance of the appearance of West Capitol Avenue to our economic vitality. We share your desire to see it prosper, and are taking steps designed to make the happen.

Although General Fund monies are already being spent in providing service to West Capitol Avenue businesses, your Associate has asked for additional financial assistance for the purpose of marketing. The City Council, in the past, has offered to help. In 1994, they approved up to $250,000 in funding directly to your Association. The offer was rejected by your members because it required accountability and adherence to standards.

As you mentioned in your letter, we have offered financial assistance to other business concerns, but it was done to ultimately benefit the City, and it was only done if a high likelihood of success existed. As guardians of public funds, we must be more judicious than a lending institution. The City is willing to help, but not without assurances and a business plan that makes sense to us. You have identified your targeted market as government and business travelers, but yet have focused your marketing efforts on billboard advertising along freeways. Neither of those two target groups typically makes decisions on their lodging while driving down the road.

I have yet to be shown a proposal that would justify my support of City assistance. To date, your association remains at odds with non-affiliates on the best way to market your business. I remain open to suggestions, and would welcome a revised plan fully supported by all hotel/motel operators in West Sacramento.

If you would care to include me, or other City staff, at one of your future meetings to further discuss any of these issues, please let me know.

Letters to the Editor

Child care

To Greg Potnick, Mayor, and members of the West Sacramento City Council:

Some of us who have worked over the years for a comprehensive Child Care services system and who supported the inclusion of the Child Care Provisions in the General Plan find the Ordinance before the Council July 12 as a voluntary ordinance almost a "nothing" -- one member of the community called it a "cop-out."

As an individual, I would support the ordinance as a litmus test: by having it this is one hoop (very low) for new businesses and developments to jump over.

Any first class developer or business will want to have good quality child care for its employees or its purchaser of a residence. They will want to plan with the Council for child care. Those who do not care could be uninformed. West Sacramento as a Premier City should be asking itself if it wants development on the cheap or by developers who really do not understand what makes a community good for businesses and its residents.

This week's comment:

The leaf blower with gasoline powered motors spewing forth the carbon elements making for bad air are still blowing in West Sacramento.

What is the community going to do?

Should the city council have an ordinance, or should there be more education on use? . . . At least don't use them on bad air quality days.

Nature and its many colors are topic of local artist

From Betty Fairbairn Sokolich Exhibition Chairperson Friends of the Library

Nature, whether the great outdoors or the flowers blooming in the garden provides the inspiration for Norma Walsh currently exhibiting her paintings at the Arthur Turner Library, 1212 Merkley Avenue, West Sacramento. Following the tradition of traditional landscape painters Walsh creates attractive paintings using mostly objective colors such as the monochromatic colors of "Autumn Leaves," watercolor, or the deep blues and greens of "Garden Gate." "Into the Woods," watercolor, is a whimsical departure from the usual forest scene. The ambiguous yellow, oranges, and purples are pulled together in an exciting way through the technique of calligraphy to create a dense grove of trees. "Aspen Grove," oil, hanging next to "into the Woods" gives a good contrast of media and complimentary colors.

A large fir tree emerges from the snow bank in "Sierra Spring" which has a lovely abstract pattern in the shadows of the snow. A fresh approach is found in "Headlands" where the artist had the courage to leave large areas of the white paper unpainted to give a sparkling effect to the simplified design and composition of the land jutting into the ocean and reflected in the water in a skillful use of wet-in-wet painting techniques.

One wall is the meeting room of the library used for the exhibits is aglow with Walsh's flower paintings. The variety of shapes and textures in the wealth of flowers available for an artist to use as her subject have inspired the artist to use intensified colors with a variety of media: watercolor; pastel; oil; and acrylic to achieve her floral statements. "Floral" zooms in on the red blossoms and uses contrasting greens to provide the environment for the flowers. Several of the flower paintings are set-up as still-lifes adding other elements of interested to the painting. For instance, in "Summer Fun" the large vase of flowers in accompanied by marbles and sandals to indicate the time of the year.

Norma Walsh and part of her oeuvre

The various media used by Walsh are all handled in ways that are unique to the techniques of each media and the interpretation of the artist.

A small group of miniatures is also on display and shows a wide selection of subject matters as "Jenny In the Garden," "Giraffe," and "Teddy in the Rocker."

A reception for the artist was held on June 9. The exhibits are sponsored by the East Yolo Friends of the Library. The exhibit will remain on view until July 13, so there is still time to visit the library meeting room to enjoy the show. Open during regular library hours.

First lady's fan club plans volunteer work

Inspired by First Lady Hillary Clinton's book, "It Takes a Village," the Yolo County Hillary Rodham Clinton Fan Club is sponsoring "Village Volunteers." This group will help at the migrant labor camp in South Davis this summer with Helen Klevickis as the organizer. Volunteers are needed for help in the nursery one morning a week, drivers are needed for transporting children, and helping with sewing and reading patterns. Other projects may develop. Anyone who can give one or two hours a week is urged to call Dr. Klevickis to volunteer at 756-2135.

Pac Bell plan would keep West Sac in 916 area code; change rest of Yolo County

From Pacific Bell

Northern California residents will have an opportunity to comment on two plans for adding a new area code in the 916 region at a series of public meetings in June.

Bruce Bennett, California area code relief coordinator, said a new area code is needed as early as December 1997 to keep up with the increasing demand for new telephone numbers, which is being spurred by the high-technology explosion of fax machines, pagers and cellular phones as well as competition in the local telephone industry.

The 916 area code currently serves all or portions of 23 Northern California counties from Sacramento north to the Oregon border, and the Mono County community of Coleville.

Dates and locations of the meetings are:

Wednesday, June 26: South Lake Tahoe, Tahoe Seasons Resort, 3901 Saddle Road, 12 to 2 p.m.; and Roseville, Maidu Community Center, Reception Hall, 1550 Maidu Drive, 7 to 9 p.m.

Thursday, June 27: Chico, City Hall, City Council Chambers, 421 Main Street, 1 to 3 p.m.; and Redding, City Hall, City Council Chambers, 1313 California Street, 7 to 9 p.m.

Two plans proposed by the telecommunications industry -- one adding the area code through a geographical split, the other using the overlay method -- will be presented at the meeting.

In a geographical split, the area served by the existing area code is divided with roughly half the customers being required to change the area code portion of their phone number and the remaining customers keeping the old area code. In an overlay, the new area code is placed over the existing area code. Both have the same geographic boundaries. The new area code would be given to people who request a new phone number. Existing customers would keep their present area code.

Neither plan would impact the price of calls. Call distance determines call price and is not impacted by the creation of a new area code.

The options under consideration for the 916 area code are:

Geographic split: In the proposed geographic split option, the 916 portion of Sacramento County, South Placer County including the cities of Roseville, Loomis and Rocklin and the City of West Sacramento in Yolo County would stay in the 916 area code. The remainder of the 916 region would receive a new area code. This includes the rest of Placer County, the majority of Yolo County excluding West Sacramento), the 916 portion of El Dorado County, all of Nevada, Yuba, Sutter, Colusa, Sierra, Butte, Glenn, Plumas, Tehama, Lassen, Shasta, Trinity, Modoc and Siskiyou counties, the 916 portion of Alpine County and small portions of Solano, Mendocino, Lake and Humboldt counties as well as the Mono County community of Coleville.

Overlay: In the overlay option proposed for 916, the new area code would be placed over the existing 916 area code. The two codes would have the same geographic boundaries. The new area code would be given to people requesting a new phone number. Existing 916 customers would keep their area code. If an overlay is chosen, the California Public Utilities Commission (CPUC) has determined that 1 + 10-digit dialing (1+the area code and the seven-digit telephone number) will be required for all calls within and between the new and old area codes.

At the meetings, to be moderated by representatives of the CPUC's Consumer Advisory and Compliance Division, details of the plans will be outlined followed by a public comment period.

Under state law, the telecommunications industry is required to meet with customers and consider their input before a final area code relief plan is filed with the Commission. The Commission makes the final decision on area code relief. Customers unable to attend a meeting can send written comments to: Bruce Bennett, California Area Code Relief Coordinator, 2600 Camino Ramon, Room 1S900V, San Ramon, CA, 94583.

Pac Bell plan would keep West Sac in 916 area code; change rest of Yolo County

From Pacific Bell

Northern California residents will have an opportunity to comment on two plans for adding a new area code in the 916 region at a series of public meetings in June.

Bruce Bennett, California area code relief coordinator, said a new area code is needed as early as December 1997 to keep up with the increasing demand for new telephone numbers, which is being spurred by the high-technology explosion of fax machines, pagers and cellular phones as well as competition in the local telephone industry.

The 916 area code currently serves all or portions of 23 Northern California counties from Sacramento north to the Oregon border, and the Mono County community of Coleville.

Dates and locations of the meetings are:

Wednesday, June 26: South Lake Tahoe, Tahoe Seasons Resort, 3901 Saddle Road, 12 to 2 p.m.; and Roseville, Maidu Community Center, Reception Hall, 1550 Maidu Drive, 7 to 9 p.m.

Thursday, June 27: Chico, City Hall, City Council Chambers, 421 Main Street, 1 to 3 p.m.; and Redding, City Hall, City Council Chambers, 1313 California Street, 7 to 9 p.m.

Two plans proposed by the telecommunications industry -- one adding the area code through a geographical split, the other using the overlay method -- will be presented at the meeting.

In a geographical split, the area served by the existing area code is divided with roughly half the customers being required to change the area code portion of their phone number and the remaining customers keeping the old area code. In an overlay, the new area code is placed over the existing area code. Both have the same geographic boundaries. The new area code would be given to people who request a new phone number. Existing customers would keep their present area code.

Neither plan would impact the price of calls. Call distance determines call price and is not impacted by the creation of a new area code.

The options under consideration for the 916 area code are:

Geographic split: In the proposed geographic split option, the 916 portion of Sacramento County, South Placer County including the cities of Roseville, Loomis and Rocklin and the City of West Sacramento in Yolo County would stay in the 916 area code. The remainder of the 916 region would receive a new area code. This includes the rest of Placer County, the majority of Yolo County excluding West Sacramento), the 916 portion of El Dorado County, all of Nevada, Yuba, Sutter, Colusa, Sierra, Butte, Glenn, Plumas, Tehama, Lassen, Shasta, Trinity, Modoc and Siskiyou counties, the 916 portion of Alpine County and small portions of Solano, Mendocino, Lake and Humboldt counties as well as the Mono County community of Coleville.

Overlay: In the overlay option proposed for 916, the new area code would be placed over the existing 916 area code. The two codes would have the same geographic boundaries. The new area code would be given to people requesting a new phone number. Existing 916 customers would keep their area code. If an overlay is chosen, the California Public Utilities Commission (CPUC) has determined that 1 + 10-digit dialing (1+the area code and the seven-digit telephone number) will be required for all calls within and between the new and old area codes.

At the meetings, to be moderated by representatives of the CPUC's Consumer Advisory and Compliance Division, details of the plans will be outlined followed by a public comment period.

Under state law, the telecommunications industry is required to meet with customers and consider their input before a final area code relief plan is filed with the Commission. The Commission makes the final decision on area code relief. Customers unable to attend a meeting can send written comments to: Bruce Bennett, California Area Code Relief Coordinator, 2600 Camino Ramon, Room 1S900V, San Ramon, CA, 94583.

For information on the 916 area code public meetings and any other updates, customers may call 1-800-544-0355.

A workshop for the public on Southport financing issues will be held today at 5:30 p.m. in city council chambers, 2101 Stone Blvd.

City staff will be present to discuss the private financing agreements which have been recently approved with the Port of Sacramento and Southport Industrial Park Investors; proposed agreements with residential developers; the cost and revenues for the Palamidessi Bridge Project; financing for future public works projects needed for the development of Southport and timing of development issues. All interested parties are welcome to attend.

The West Sacramento Economic Development Advisory Commission will hold a meeting on June 26 at 5:45 p.m. in city council chambers, 2101 Stone Blvd.

Teichert bids low on bridge

The West Sacramento City Council will tonight consider awarding a contract for constructing a new bridge over the barge canal to Teichert Construction.

Teichert's bid for the project was $11.972,318.80.

Granite Construction Engineers bid approximately $700,000 above the Teichert bid.

The Daniel C. Palamidessi bridge, to include room for four lanes and no immediate rail crossing, is planned to connect the Southport region with Industrial Blvd. near Park Blvd.

By restricting traffic flow from Southport to west-bound Industrial Blvd. only, engineers expect to prevent Southport traffic from using Park Blvd. or Jefferson Blvd. after crossing the new bridge.
